Electronic Fare Payment

Green Light - This card is a valid form of payment and the customer can board the bus.

Yellow Light - A yellow light requires additional action by the customer. For example, some customers must pay an upgrade for premium service before boarding the express bus.

Red Light - When a customer receives a red light politely ask for an alternate form of payment.

No Response - This could occur because the card is damaged or the card reader is broken. Use your operator test card to check the card reader. If the card reader works, ask the customer for another form of payment and to contact their card issuer for a replacement card.
